

Ring of Light

A Newsletter for the Members of the Julian Community

Volume XIV Number 4 December 2006

Another year comes to a close, 2006 has brought many changes to all our lives.

We are thankful for having June Burke in our lives. We have all been changed for having known her and the Seraph Julian. They have left us rich with legacies of teachings, healings, a new sense: of our being, of our self-worth, of our place in the Earth and the Universe.

We are thankful for the freedom we enjoy and the path we have chosen. Thankful that we can look back over this past year and recognize and celebrate our growth. Thankful for each and everyone one of you for your support that allows us to bring the Ring of Light to You.

We ring in the New Year 2007 full of certainty that we make a difference in everything we do! Full of certainty that we do create an oasis of peace and love that will go out like ripples in a stream to touch those around us and beyond.

Our theme for this issue is the Power of Peace. Take the time to read each one noting the underlining thread that peace begins with me. Each of us is responsible for creating our own peace, living it, and thus spreading it. Then we can sing honestly, "Now I can walk with all others in perfect harmony."

The Song of Peace

Submitted by Blanche Duffy,
Saugerties, NY

Let there be peace on earth
And let it begin with me;
Let there be peace on earth,
The peace that was meant to be.
With God as our Creator
Family all are we.
Let us walk with each other
In perfect harmony.

Let peace begin with me,
Let this be the moment now.
With every step I take
Let this be my solemn vow:
To take each moment
And live each moment
In perfect harmony.
Let there be peace on earth
And let it begin with me.

Now there is peace on earth
And it has begun within me.
I see peace covering the earth,
Peace as it is meant to be.
With God as our Power
Guiding us all the way
Now I can walk with all others
In perfect harmony!

Astrology

Feature Column by Eleanor Johnson ~ La Grangeville, NY

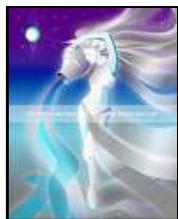

December 21st ushers in the Winter Solstice. Solstices are turning points in time. It is a reflective time as it begins the Winter season. The sun goes into Capricorn, lending intensity to the season.

December has many planets in Sagittarius, a mutable fire sign. The planet, Jupiter, is the ruler of Sagittarius and is in its own sign until December 2007. It can bestow its benevolent vibrations quite freely. Jupiter is the largest planet in the solar system representing our higher mental faculties. Therefore, it is associated with the gift of prophecy, philosophy, and higher education on all levels.

It has its association with long distance travel as it rules other cultures and other countries. If you do not physically travel, you may take journeys of the mind, and this added information can be a part of your experience. Just be sure you maintain balance in all your affairs. Avoid overdoing and over extension of your energies.

Fly high but be sure to bring yourself down to earth. That should not be too difficult as 2007 begins with Mercury in Capricorn, Mercury, in this sign, steadies the mind giving it practicality and common sense. This planet is also characterized by caution and prefers to adhere to the status quo.

Venus resides in Aquarius in January expressing originality. Venus, in this sign of the Water Bearer, is social. Inventive ideas are stimulating in this fixed air sign.

Saturn makes a Trine to Jupiter and Pluto in the heavens balancing the ability to make the most out of our experiences. The potential for growth on all levels can be actualized. The ability to transform whatever in your life is in need of change can be successful.

In February, Mercury retrogrades from February 14 until March 8. Mercury will be in Pisces during its retrograde period accompanied by Venus in Pisces. The imagination with these two personal planets in Pisces will be highly enhanced. Expect to feel ethereal, spacey, sensitive, and intuitive.

Mercury in Pisces gives fluctuating emotions which can cause vacillation in thinking and decision making. If decisions need to be made, be sure to make them without haste. There can be a tendency to react using the subconscious rather than the conscious mind's reasoning. Music and meditation can have a soothing and positive effect during that time.

March brings Venus in Aries for most of the month. Venus in Aries can take good care of itself with a 'Me First' attitude.

Mars, the planet of action, is in the fixed Air sign of Aquarius. They can complement each other especially in group related discussions.

As Jupiter and Saturn are making a trine in the heavens they can create a bridge to enhance understanding between people.

Meditation: A Sea of Tranquility

This one is to help you understand yourself a little bit and accept the universe a little bit.

The first thing I want you to do is take a deep breath, and as you breathe in, realize you are breathing in the energy of a clear spring day filled with pure air -- only that which is good for you. As it fills your body, as it brings to you a sense of tranquility, you permit yourself to open to a voyage.

You are surrounded to white light, and no harm can come to you in the journey you are about to make. Listen carefully to my words.

I am a sea of tranquility in whose depths there is wisdom.

I am a sea of tranquility in whose depths there is direction.

I am a sea of tranquility in whose depths there is fulfillment.

Feel yourself dive deeply into the sea, and as you go deeper and deeper in total safety, you see the light filtering through the water, ever moving, ever changing. Let yourself go through it, let yourself glide.

Below you, you can see the ledges, the coral reefs. See its variegated colors. You move and glide among many species of fish. None harm you, none threaten you. You are one with all sea beings. Suddenly you are aware of the serenity and the peace and the tranquility, and it becomes a living, breathing part of you.

Ahead of you there appears to be a wall. Toward the bottom of that wall, there is an opening. Let yourself glide into that opening.

Here there is no sound. Silence, which all sound, is present.

As you glide through this tunnel-like aperture, you become one with the silence, and at that point, one with all sound. Gliding, gliding, moving forward, ahead of you, you see light, and as you move out the other end of the tunnel, you are rushed upward, and now surrounding you is the cosmic sea and the starlight.

Gentle waves of energy rush through as you move through the starlit night, soft moonlight gently touching you. And you become aware of the intellect of the cosmos, and you feel it fill you, and you are awakened to the full potential of the universe.

Drifting downward now, you find yourself standing in a circle of light. Around you the energies of the universe flow, and the thought is: I am the universe, I am the cosmic sea, I am the waters that flow and the silence that sings.

Filling you now is an awareness, a tranquility, a peace that is universal. Let yourself now accept the wisdom of the universe as you become one with it.

And now, take a deep breath and permit yourself to return.

Power Investing

“To thine own Self be True.”

Submitted by John Svirsky, Garrison, NY

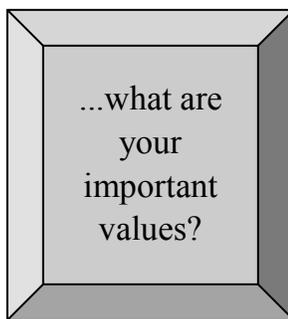

As we complete yet another year of our lives, it's good to step back and take a look at what we have created during the past year. We can step back detached from our day to day mundane lives and see what is and what directions it appears that we are heading. Although I would like to take credit for this concept, it comes straight from the Old Testament, God rested on the seventh day, he sanctified it, and he was pleased.

What a great feeling it can be to step away from the mundane pressures of daily life and take a look of what we have done with our life. That is what I am suggesting that each of us do between now and the end of the year. For from this inventory we can chart a new individual course for 2007 based on thought, feelings and awareness of what we have done and what we wish to repeat. This is where the power lies, in seeing just what actions are working in our life and what actions are not. We can discover what we have done during the past year that has produced wonderful results (this can and should be more than just monetary results) and see how we can do more of that during the coming year.

I have found that before planning a new journey, it is good for me to know what I want and why, to see what my motivations are, to see and connect with the derivation of the motivations and once I can align myself emotionally (not mentally, but emotionally) then my journey will be bound to be successful. The way I start is by doing what I said in the first paragraph; look at where I am right now. Some people call this taking an inventory of their lives, but what ever you call it, it is effective and productive.

To begin with, ask yourself what are the most important qualities in your life today. What are your motivational forces that drive your life? Is it integrity (usually in the top 5 for most people, although less than that actually practice it), Peace of Mind, Excitement, Challenge, Love, Family Life, Empire Building, Money to prove self worth, lack of money to prove spirituality, Living according to your personal religious or spiritual beliefs, Service to others, Play, working all week so you can party and explore nature on the weekends, travel, the list goes on and on. Connect with the top 5 or 10 emotional factors that are the hidden motivators in your life. Most of us, give very little thought or attention to these, but in reality, these are the subconscious programming that is operating within us 90% of the time when the “boss – the conscious mind” is not giving orders and directions.

When the boss (the part of us that we show the outside world) is present but moving us in different directions from what we are aligned with emotionally, then we have conflict. We move forward in the conscious direction for a while, but once distracted the subconscious immediately goes back to its internal programming. If you doubt this to be true, ask yourself why do most people gain back the weight that they have lost? Or why do most lottery winners end up bankrupt? Or why do so many people who are on the “fast track to success” crash and burn? Something sabotages them along the way. That something is the inner self that was not made a part of the journey and it was not integrated into your dream. You can mentally achieve the goal, but if you do not inwardly believe it, you will return to your inner self image. That is why the first step is to harmonize your mind with your subconscious programming and your emotional sense of self. It is so vital for long lasting success.

That is also why it is so important to step aside and take a look at what are your important values. See which of those values actually came from your parents growing up. See which values came from reactions to your early childhood, and see which ones you have taken as yours because people you loved and respected had them, etc. Then take some time and ask yourself, for 2007 what values would you like to emphasize in your life. Remembering every day at every moment that we can reevaluate our direction.

To digress, did you know that an airplane is off course over 80% of the time; the pilot constantly has to put the airplane back on course. But what is important is that the pilot knows the destination and the plane is moving toward that destination when it veers off. There are subtle adjustments to bring it back to course. So to with us. Many times as we are moving in one direction, we get distracted, decide to do this, then that, and we go off course – I hope that is not what I have done with this article. So after connecting with the core values that you would like to emphasize for 2007, accept that they are fluid and their mix is constantly changing. One day's excitement might be # 1, another day it might be safety and security, another day looking for challenge, while another day resting. Give yourself permission to be flexible rather than fixed.

The next step I take is a gratitude list. You have already taken the time to look back at your year, evaluating what has worked and what has not. Now make a list of all the things in your life that you are grateful for. For example your health, your family, your loved ones, your physical well being, your mental well being, your material well being, and the level of prosperity you have. I always add my clients, the availability of food, and the freedom to be myself. My gratitude list goes on for pages. It is so easy to take for granted all that is present and that we have in our lives. For me this is a really important step. IT can take as much as a week of writing, coming back day after day adding things that I did not think of before. This is not TV, life takes longer than a 30 minute sitcom or a 60 minute drama.

Time takes time, the more time and energy you put into doing this, the more reward is bound to follow. It never ceases to amaze me how much is present that I rush right by in the frantic pace of life. That is just what I am writing out in relation to our inner core values. Rather than the mental dictator within saying this is what we are doing, connect with what drives you inwardly and fulfill those emotional, mental and spiritual needs and 2007 can be a great year for you.

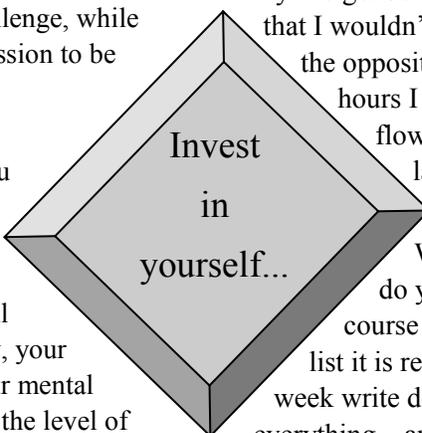

The gratitude list helps us see for ourselves just what is important in our lives. If you are like most people, you spend more time on things that do not satisfy you, and less time on those things that are high on your gratitude list. When I first did this exercise and saw that a good portion of my day was spent doing things I did not like doing, and justifying it as business because I had to do it to make money; I shifted the balance of my life and changed things. The operative word here is balance. Yes I do have bills, mortgage and car payments to make etc., but a funny thing happened when I started spending more time with my family and friends, and when I set boundaries with my work hours. I spent more time taking care of my inner needs (which became more apparent from the exercises detailed above). Not only did my life get better, I felt better. At first I was panicked that I wouldn't have enough or make enough, but just the opposite happens. I am more focused in the hours I do work, so the money still continues to flow and I take time to enjoy the fruits of my labor.

Which brings me to my next point. How do you invest your time, your energy and of course your money? After doing your gratitude list it is really productive to do a time chart. For a week write down everything you do – and that means everything – and put down how much time you spend doing it. You will discover just how much time is wasted, how much time we spend doing meaningless things or things that give us very little reward for the time invested. Investing in ourselves will always pay the highest returns. To me my portfolio of investments include time with family, education –I do spiritual work, give service to others, I cook as a hobby, and have been a volunteer fireman for the past 18 years, I travel, help others to help themselves, the list goes on and on.

Invest in yourself by first being honest with yourself. Get to know you on more than just the external superficial level. And once you do, fulfill those aspects of you, which may have been neglected in the past. Now is a good time for this transformation. The power to create, the power to change, the power to let go of that which no longer serves us is within each of us; yet few of us have been willing to use it.

I wish for all of us, a year of Health, Happiness and Prosperity. May we live our dreams in 2007 and may we find them fulfilling.

Power of Peace

By Blanche Duffy, Saugerties, NY

How can you possibly feel peaceful in this chaotic world? Every day we hear the horrors taking place in Iraq, the genocide in Darfur, the suffering of the victims of Katrina more than one year after the hurricane, the drought in the Midwest, the wildfires in the west, and other catastrophes too numerous to list here. How does one maintain a sense of peace in the midst of such a turbulent world?

Many times in the Julian classes, when this subject came up, Julian cited the Serenity Prayer:

GOD, grant me the Serenity
To accept the things I cannot change,
Courage to change the things I can,
And the Wisdom to know
The difference.

I can maintain my peaceful state ... if I stay focused on the issues...

Analyzing the sections of this prayer reveals volumes! Serenity to accept the things I cannot change. How many of us can HONESTLY say we maintain serenity while listening to the evening news? How many of us maintain serenity when someone make what we consider a snide remark? And do we always maintain serenity in the face of mean or hurtful situations? No show of hands is necessary—we all know the answers!

Over the years I've been able to better understand what the first line of the prayer really means. I can't claim to be an expert yet. But with lots of practice and lots of forgiving myself, I've learned that anger, rushing into a situation where I have been no expert to handle it, or getting involved in something that is too vast for me to make a difference will not solve anything. But a true assessment of the situation will tell me if a combination of sending healing Light and physical action will accomplish the goal or if no physical action and simply sending healing Light would be a better solution. Very often the only reasonable action we can take is the sending of healing Light because of the very nature of the problem. By taking time to envision the situation in Light, by sending healing to everyone and everything involved and then turning it over to God helps me reverse what I see as a negative. Envisioning a positive outcome without trying to dictate what the outcome should be helps me to feel that I have done something to contribute to a correct answer. This in turn, helps me to feel peace and serenity knowing that the right and perfect solution, while out of my hands, will prevail in the right and perfect time. Do I always accomplish this? No! But I keep trying.

Courage to change the things I can! Now... this is a real challenge! So often we know what is the right thing to do, the action we need to take, but somehow cannot bring ourselves to actually take that step. We know that a good friend is very depressed and having family problems. We see this friend slipping further and further into depression and perhaps even becoming abusive in personal relationships. But the friend keeps telling us that we are the only people who understand, the only people with whom he can talk. He's looking for sympathy, for someone to wallow in the mud with him—keep him company.

We may not always be willing to face a potential confrontation in order to try to get this person to obtain help. The person has free will and can refuse, but as a friend would it not behoove us to make the effort? Merely giving sympathy could result in feelings of guilt on our part for not doing all that we could to help! Julian always said to give compassion (the high road "But you have a choice...") but not sympathy (the low road "Oh, poor you, the world is so mean!")!

Sometimes this is a situation where "tough love" might be an appropriate method of help. Sometimes gently leading the person in a different direction is better. But this is an example of when courage is needed on our part to try to affect a change in a situation where taking action could be a benefit. Serenity comes by recognizing that we may come out of it bloodied and scarred but still we did our best to help introduce the needed change.

Wisdom to know the difference! Good Gracious! Have I ever needed that too many times! In my younger days I was the type of person who yelled “charge” before I had donned my armor and sword! All too often I was in the middle of the fray before I knew what the fray was about. I suppose a combination of scars and aging has mellowed me out some. But also a gradual understanding of the Julian teachings has made me understand that before I dive head first into the pool to save the day I must know which is the shallow end and which is the deep end and just what am I trying to save? Many of Julian’s lessons involved analyzing a situation, looking for the subtleties in the statement, determining if a problem even existed. By applying those lessons to life often I am amazed to realize that what I first perceived as a major problem was/is in reality a blessing! If not a blessing, at least not something that I need do something about other than send healing Light.

I suppose the primary lesson I have learned from the Julian teaching and the Serenity Prayer is that I can maintain my peaceful state in any situation if I stay focused on the issues and not get bogged down with tangents. I must discern what the issues are and next determine what is the appropriate role for me to play. Will it be active—get involved plus send healing, or will it be passive—only send healing. ACCEPTING the decision is a crucial last step! Therein comes the wisdom, and the wisdom of the correct decision brings the peace. Maintaining a calm, peaceful state of mind is the first and most important step to a peaceful solution.

So when I watch the news on TV and see ego-based atrocities occurring around the world I begin visualizing the healing Light filling the situation and I feel that I AM doing something to help!

JOY and SAUL'S CORNER

We are fast approaching the Winter Solstice and the various Festival of Light holidays of Christmas, Hanukkah, and Kwanzaa. As we settle into the introspection and serenity of the winter season, may all of our individual Lights join together with all of the other lights in the world and The Universe - praying for peace and harmony, brotherhood and unconditional Love.

Julian has told us numerous times, "The only constant in our world is change."

There have been major changes in all of our lives on many different levels since the passing of our beloved teacher and friend, June K. Burke.

Our intention is to keep you updated with the many projects that have begun and those we wish to begin in the future.

We want to thank the members of the Julian Community for all the support and encouragement you have given Joy and me as we embark on fulfilling our promise to June and Julian to carry out their work, with the best interests of all in mind. It has been a difficult, yet joyful challenge. No doubt we have made some mistakes along the way. Your patience, your commitment, and your suggestions are important to us.

Our immediate goals are:

1. To organized and catalog the vast amount of material June and Julian provided us.
2. To begin transferring the audio tapes to digital format.
3. To encourage promulgation of TE, Self Development, and Magus classes.
4. To continue The Gathering on an annual basis.

These projects are ongoing and other projects are also being planned.

A Different Christmas Poem

Author Unknown ~ Submitted by Stanley Perry , Oceanside, CA

The embers glowed softly, and in their dim light,
I gazed round the room and I cherished the sight.

My wife was asleep, her head on my chest,

My daughter beside me, angelic in rest.

Outside the snow fell, a blanket of white,

Transforming the yard to a winter delight.

The sparkling lights in the tree I believed

Completed the magic that was Christmas Eve.

My eyelids were heavy, my breathing was deep,

Secure and surrounded by love I would sleep.

In perfect contentment, or so it would seem,

So I slumbered, perhaps I started to dream.

The sound wasn't loud, and it wasn't too near,

But I opened my eyes when it tickled my ear.

Perhaps just a cough, I didn't quite know,

Then the sure sound of footsteps outside in the snow.

My soul gave a tremble, I struggled to hear,

And I crept to the door just to see who was near.

Standing out in the cold and the dark of the night,

A lone figure stood, his face weary and tight.

A soldier, I puzzled, some twenty years old,

Perhaps a Marine, huddled here in the cold.

Alone in the dark, he looked up and smiled,

Standing watch over me, and my wife and my child.

"Come in this moment, it's freezing out there!

Put down your pack, brush the snow from your sleeve,

You should be at home on a cold Christmas Eve!"

For barely a moment I saw his eyes shift,

Away from the cold and the snow blown in drifts..

To the window that danced with a warm fire's light

Then he sighed and he said "It's really all right,

I'm out here by choice. I'm here every night."

That separates you from the darkest of times.
No one had to ask, or beg, or implore me.
I’m proud to stand here like my fathers before me.
My Gramps died at ‘Pearl on a day in December,’”
Then he sighed, “That’s a Christmas ‘Gram’ always remembers.
My dad stood his watch in the jungles of ‘Nam’,
And now it is my turn and so, here I am.
I’ve not seen my own son in more than a while,
But my wife sends me pictures, he’s sure got her smile.”

Then he bent and he carefully pulled from his bag,
The red, white and blue... an American Flag.
“I can live through the cold and the being alone,
Away from my family, my house and my home.
I can stand at my post through the rain and the sleet,
I can sleep in a foxhole with little to eat.
I can carry the weight of killing another,
Or lay down my life with my sister and brother..
Who stands at the front against any and all,
To ensure for all time that this flag will not fall.
So go back inside,” he said, “Harbor no fright,
Your family is waiting and I’ll be all right.”

“But isn’t there something I can do, at the least,
Give you money,” I asked, “Or prepare you a feast?
It seems all too little for all that you’ve done,
For being away from your wife and your son.”

Then his eye welled a tear that held no regret,
“Just tell us you love us, and never forget,
To fight for our rights back at home while we’re gone,
To stand your own watch, not matter how long.
For when we come home, either standing or dead,
To know you remember we fought and we bled.
Is payment enough, and with that we will trust,
That we mattered to you as you mattered to us.”

The Power of Peace

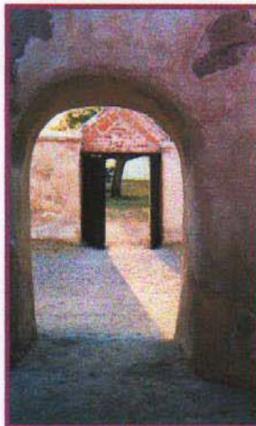

A Workshop

With Sam & Anne Claire

April 15 - 20, 2007

Tubac Arizona, USA

I put into action the power of peace
and send balance
into the world.

The quietness of the desert coupled with the beautiful creativity of the area makes this the perfect venue for working with the power of peace.

This workshop will be our first in an area where the quiet and powerful Lemurian energy predominates. Lemuria is thousands of years older than the Atlantean energies we experienced in our other workshops.
