Tilling the earth means to cultivate the soil for growing crops as well as removal of unwanted weeds and stones. Julian's affirmation stating that We are Light Beings striving toward Oneness lays the foundation for the articles within this issue.

Eleanor's article states that the retrograde period of many planets at this time is a golden opportunity to rethink and review what we are currently doing. John encourages us to take the time to still our minds so that we can open more fully to our spiritual nature through communication with our higher self and spirit guides. Walk my talk through living what I believe in is Blanche's contribution. Cultivation is a process of change and Joy tells us that change is upon us. George Ruby teaches us the reward of tilling the soil is a life well spent.

Enjoy!

JULIAN AFFIRMATION

By the Light within me, I see the Light in you.

By the Love within me, I feel the Love in you.

Light and Love shall guide me.

Light and Love shall comfort me.

Light and Love shall let me see

That You and I are WE.

And WE are ONE.

And our Oneness shall bring Light.

Wholeness and health are ours.

Light and Love shall rule.

SO BE IT.

And now I say to You, You are Light and You are Love.
You are separate and You are ONE. In this pattern shall be found Peace and all that leads to a Oneness in the Universe. You are Instruments of Light, Instruments of Love, and in the weaving together, the tapestry of peace shall be.

Astrology

Feature Column by Eleanor Johnson ~ La Grangeville, NY

July opens with many planets retrograde and in fire signs; Venus in Leo, Jupiter in Sagittarius, Saturn in Leo, Pluto in Sagittarius. All these planets in fire signs could create a heated July, even in areas of the country that normally experience more moderate temperatures.

Venus retrogrades July 28th to September 8th. Venus rules your love nature and social urges. Expect your social life to increase as well as your creativity. During this retrograde period you can view or review things and people more objectively and less impulsively. In relationships, partnerships tend to move us toward stability and steadiness.

Jupiter is retrograde until August 6th. Rethink your philosophical and religious activities. Engage in projects of a philanthropic nature. Re-evaluate any matters of a legal nature should they be on your agenda. Jupiter rules the legal system.

Uranus will retrograde from June 23rd to November 24, 2007. Stick to the facts with tested ideas and methods. You may view life in a more detached way. During this retrograde period, it can show us new ways to function in our every day world without discarding the ideas and methods that have proven to be worthwhile. In other words, "Don't throw the baby out with the bath water".

Neptune will be retrograde until November 24, 2007. During this retrograde period, there will be time to review our spiritual goals. Avoid judgment and criticism. Acceptance of a person's journey in life is to be respected. The most positive way to handle this is for all of us to express our light to the best of our ability.

Neptune rules the collective unconscious. Retrograde Neptune gives us all the opportunity to express compassion and sympathy in a realistic and positive way, that does not interfere with a person's journey. Using Neptune wisely means not to do for the individual that which he is able to do for himself.

In the month of August Venus is in Leo conjuncting Saturn. Saturn sitting on top of Venus, can constrict the love nature as well as make us overly cautious about finances. Venus in Leo is prone to be lavish. "The sky's the limit, let's have fun!" Saturn can confine Venus's enthusiasm and act as a wet blanket. On the positive side of Saturn's more restrictive nature, balance can be brought to help us stay grounded especially where speculative ventures are concerned.

Mars will be in the sign of Gemini in August and September. Mars is action, our motivator. Many projects can be completed when Mars in this sign. Mars brims over with ideas, but can become scattered if not directed to follow through.

Julian Discusses

None of you have remained the same person as you were when you came on this Earth. You've gone through all the different phases in your life, some where you had a need to have a strong ego identity and some where you simply accepted that whatever it is you were, was okay. But those are phases in your growth pattern. There is not a day when you won't learn and grow and move.

You're stopping to identify with the facade. Probably for many, the first time ever learning your reality. And the reality is: you are Divine Children of God with Divine rights of your own. The need to compete, the need to pressure, the need to be best, the need for winner takes all, falls away. You're realizing that whether you're the best or not doesn't matter: you're still you, and you are Okay.

Under all this turmoil of change, there is a great PEACE that is coming. It doesn't mean you'll use your potential less, but it means you're going to know yourself in a different way. Therefore, for the first, some people are going to be able to be what they really are without thinking they need someone's approval. They're going to be able to say, "Hey, I'm okay!" regardless of what others or what society views as "success" or the "right" way. THAT'S THE DIFFERENCE.

It's a very strange time, because everything in you, every single thing in you is in change. Everything around you is in change. Nothing holds the same identity. It's okay to let go and just take it a day at a time right now. You can only go forward. Many people are still trying to go back. Many people are still trying to make responsibility a concrete foundation. Many people are trying to do many things with themselves right now and having a terrible time, because they just can't do it. (The energy of the times is not supportive of the process.) Everything must change. Nothing remains the same.

How to accomplish self-awareness and self-growth? Stick-to-itivity! An important ingredient no matter what you're trying to do in your life. Whether it's to accomplish something in the most mundane sense or the most spiritual sense, that glue is still needed. It's very difficult in a busy world. It's also difficult when there are things you would rather not look at.

Patience! If you always keep in mind that you're moving at the velocity of light in your world right now and everything in your world is push-button, instant... It's hard sometimes to realize that even in the most rapid movement, there is a time for all things. If you don't take the time to let it happen on it's own, it's not going to work. The whole inclination of the universe right now is, "Do it. Get it done. Move on to the next thing.". There are certain things that just take time and one of those things is getting to know yourself. And just about the time you think you know yourself, you change. And you have a whole new fellow to meet. But, what fun! It doesn't get boring.

Tilling The Earth

by Blanche Duffy, Saugerties, New York

When I think of my past experiences with “tilling the earth” in a literal sense, I fear the population would starve if I were a real life farmer. One of my first experiences with planting a garden came when I bought my first house. My furry companion at the time was Snoopy. Together we bought six tomato plants and tenderly planted them in the back yard. Snoopy watched as I weeded, watered, and nurtured those plants. Several tomatoes on each plant were just about the ripeness for picking. I could barely contain my excitement at the thought of eating something I had grown! The next day I returned home from work, went out to the garden to pick my tomatoes – gone! How? Who? Where? Snoopy walked over to the last remaining tomato and devoured it with tremendous gusto! Apparently he had snacked on the other tomatoes while I was at work and a neighbor dropped by to let him out. So much for that year’s crop! Snoop, by the way, loved all vegetables except peas.

My next excursion into the world of Farmer Gray took place when I lived in Callicoon. Since the deer and other critters ate anything that grew I decided to have my “farm” in planters on the deck. Most of the critters didn’t like steps! So I went to the nursery and bought large containers, the best soil available, and four very healthy looking tomato plants (I love garden tomatoes!) This time I chose cherry tomatoes, and once again I weeded, watered, and nurtured those plants. Blossoms appeared, small tomatoes began to grow and after a few weeks the tomatoes were almost ready for picking. I could taste the salad I would make the next day! The next afternoon I was about to go out onto the deck to collect my treasures and there sat a chipmunk holding a cherry tomato in his paws munching away. He had eaten all but one of the cherry tomatoes! Well, I shoed him off and picked that last tomato for my salad. Somehow I couldn’t enjoy it very much remembering it cost me $25 for the setup and all I got was one cherry tomato.

Well, the literal “tilling the earth” has not been a resounding success for me, so I thought of other ways that one might “till the earth”. Then it struck me – in a sense, all of us who are doing spiritual work are “tillers of the earth”. We put out ideas for others to consider. Some people will reject those ideas outright! They might be likened to the seed that fell on the rocks. Some people will grasp the idea and sing its praises – for a week or two. Then they become enthralled with the next idea and the one we presented becomes yesterday’s news. Ah...the seed that fell on shallow soil, sprang up but soon withered for lack of a foundation soil base.

Everything we do can be spiritual work if we do it with the attitude of service and help.

But others...others will hear our idea and realize its worth. They will grasp the idea, analyze it, dissect it, view it under a microscope, and make it their own! The seed that fell on good soil with good moisture and flourished!

It is my belief that the best way to “sell” my way of thinking is to live what I believe every day of my life. No hard sell! No knocking on doors to introduce my thinking. No guy standing there screaming into a microphone that “this is the way it is and you had better shape up!” I do what I believe is the right thing to do, and I am amazed at how many people notice. If I agree to do something I do it with all of my energy and do not take short cuts. Even when I was working with the Office for Aging helping seniors with Medicare and health insurance problems many of the counselors would watch how I handled a problem and adopt the method the next time they came upon a similar problem. And often that would involve getting far more into the person’s problem than just health care. Often it went into the living conditions, food stamps, heat and electric funding, other types of help. And they found that they enjoyed going the extra step! They began feeling a lot more satisfaction from what they were doing by giving it that extra push.

Something I need to remember, however, is that I need to nurture myself at least as well as I try to nurture others. It is easy to forget that I need to pace myself so as not to become so involved in a situation that I lose sight of other things in my life that are important to me and/or to others. As someone recently said to me “Feed yourself the right ‘food’ or live by the virtues you want to see in yourself, think about making yourself a better person before you can make someone else feel better, give of your self but don't squander your emotions and exhaust yourself. You can over-fertilize and so too you can give too much of yourself...” This is so true! Some people would argue about giving too much of yourself. But, if you give so much of yourself that there is nothing left for you or for those dear to you – what have you accomplished?

Because I no longer do spiritual services at various churches and I am not currently conducting any regular group sessions some people ask why I'm no longer doing “spiritual work”. But when I share knowledge with someone on helping a person in need – I'm doing my version of spiritual work. When I met with a group recently about setting up counseling for returning service men and their families – I'm doing my version of spiritual work. As I'm taking part in writing the ethics law for our town – I'm doing my version of spiritual work.

Nowhere is it written that “spiritual work” is limited to discussing theological concepts. Spiritual work is making things better! It is fixing a problem regardless of what that problem is. It is a smile to someone who is sad. It is holding the hand of the toddler trying to take its first steps. It is driving the neighbor to the store or the doctor's visit. It is lending a hand to someone struggling with too large a bundle. It is seeing the accident or hearing the fire signal sound and sending healing Light to where it is needed. It is taking part in community affairs and voting for the best candidate instead of voting party line. Everything we do can be spiritual work if we do it with the attitude of service and help.

So, in other words, “tilling the earth” is also preparing ourselves and our surroundings to become the fertile soil a plant/thought/concept needs to grow. It is planting the seeds of healing and love that will thrive in the soil we have prepared. And finally, it is nurturing and loving the seeds we have planted to bring forth the abundant growth, the beauty and joy that is possible even during the darkest storm. Each of us is a “tiller of the earth” - we just need to allow the idea to grow!

Tilling the Earth

By John Svirsky ~ Garrison, New York

"Edited by Jeanne Livingston"

One of the basic laws of the universe as described in the Kybalion is the Law of Correspondence, as above so below. So when we describe tilling the earth I perceive this as what am I doing inwardly to prepare for now and future nows.

Since it all begins with thought, I take the time – lots of time, to do nothing and just allow myself to be. What a great luxury that is in the time of busy, busy, rush, rush, just to allow myself to do nothing. I just allow my mind to be still and allow random thoughts to come and go like clouds in the sky. I can be aware of a thought, but give it no energy. Instead, I just let it float through the consciousness and release. For it is important to allow the land to remain fallow, even as the Bible talks about every 7th year not using the soil and giving it time to regenerate.

Something we forget and need to remember is to include time to rest. We need time to regenerate. For example, several of my friends work in the corporate world and are afraid to take a vacation for fear that if they are not in the office, someone will take their place in the rat race (I say maybe that is a good thing?). So many of us have forgotten the art of resting and relaxing.

For me one of the advantages of resting and just being allows me to be impressed by Angels and my guides. I have found that by freeing my mind of the clutter of day to day thoughts, by allowing myself to release myself from predetermined concepts of how I have to do it, new thoughts and new concepts float into my being. This is one of the ways I have been consciously developing my communication with my guides.

I understand that the higher kingdoms don't always have the benefits of a channel such as June or Tran mediums. So the way they communicate when they don't have a channel is to talk via thought. Guides visualize a thought form, impregnate it (give it energy via thought) with their energy and hope the recipient's mind will be open to receive it. And that is why I have found it so important to clear my mind from the mental junk.

You can't call someone whose telephone always rings “busy”!

I will be the first to admit, that I used mental junk as a protection. If my mind was always busy, if it was always doing something, it would not have to take in outside thoughts, which I could not control (and I can be such a control freak). Allowing spirit to inspire me, goes way beyond my ability to control. Another things I found out is I need to get the ego out of the way. When I try to take credit for what comes through me, that is the quickest way to shut it down. And the ego wants credit for everything.

The spirit wants to inspire and help without need for recognition and or credit. Spirit’s reward is that we mortals apply the teachings and raise our vibration in the process. For example, Julian was fond of saying when I would thank him for a reading or wonderful guidance, “It is my job.”

If one of the jobs of the Angelic kingdom is to help us to raise our vibration and live a God Centered existence while living on earth, I have to do my part. “Be Still and Know that I AM God”. I need to first have the desire and then the will to still my busy mind.

This permits the light in and allows the inspiration to flow into my body, mind and spirit. I need to allow my physical being to merge with my Whole Self, i.e. my Divine Self, my Soul Group, and the One.

Actually, statements like the above scare the hell out of me (literally), for how can I with all my foibles, personality quirks, and defects of character live a God like existence without getting crucified for being different than everyone else? This very fear is what has kept me defensive. It’s kept my mind so busy and so preoccupied that spirit could not enter, even though on one hand I prayed for guidance and help, on the other hand my fear drowned out the guidance as soon as it was given.

So, I have written this article for myself as well as you because what I have written is just what I need to do next: relax the mind, allow the divine energy to enter my body and mind to be purified and to trust. I hope this helps you in the process as well.

Our Treasure; George Ruby

I met George over 25 years ago, at one of the lectures we were taping for Rev June Burke while channeling Julian of the Seraphim. There was an instant connection to him on many levels. He became a regular at these weekly lectures & I had been given permission by Julian to invite him to join the special Spiritual Development classes given monthly. What began as monthly classes turned into bi-monthly with the addition of the Magus Classes meeting at June's house.

George helped me to create better audios for our group, and the public lectures. He slept over at our house on many of these bi-monthly meetings. We spent many many hours talking, kidding around, and just enjoying each others company.

George was not a saint, he was a unique individual—some would say a real CHARACTER. George marched through life to his own drumbeat. As the Frank Sinatra song states “I Did It My Way”.

One thing we found out early on was that he liked butter. I never saw anyone but George use so much butter on toast ~ a 1/2 of stick of butter per slice.

He also had this huge inventory of vitamins, supplements & herbs, which he gave away many times. I had to force him to accept money.

Almost from the beginning we called each other brother. We had been together many times before in other lives.

George had the insatiable quest for spiritual & scientific knowledge and probably had more readings with Julian than anyone else. Many of his readings were to clarify & perfect healing techniques with supplements & the special lamp being built for healing use.

George also had recollections of many past lives. Some

Of these past lives recollections stirred his searches for the various gold and silver treasures. We always discussed the best way to handle the recovery & spreading this wealth around to his family, loved ones, and friends. He wasn't interested in the wealth for himself.

I mentioned earlier that George was a character. I used to call him a big ladle; because he was always stirring the pot. He would get this impish look on his face with a lopsided grin. A number of times he tried the patience and tolerance of both June and Julian. Many times he would ask a question and Julian would reply “that is not something I can reveal”. George would rephrase the question a short while later and Julian with an angelic smile would state “George just because you rephrase the question, I still can not give you that information.”

George never found the gold and silver treasures he searched for. We, who knew George, knew he was a treasure in our lives. Until we meet again ~ we send you Unconditional Love, Peace and Light - our Brother.

Saul & Joy Srouer

I remember and loved George's laugh, and the always slightly mischievous twinkle in his eye. He was our own Indiana Jones, the mad scientist, a swashbuckler from another age. George was a treasure hunter of days gone by, his dedication and passion in his search were inspiring. His heart was huge, and yet quiet and private at the same time. He was a loyal friend and community member that you could ask for. Without fanfare, he gave of himself behind the scenes; I'm sure more than any of us knew. He was always there to support June, attending classes for all those years, and with the taping services and equipment, distances not a factor. With George, you had a faithful friend for life, he was a rock. And of course as you all know, he was an incorrigible flirt, but he always made me laugh and feel special.

Dear George, I don't know if you ever found the pot of gold, but you did find your treasure, and it was your heart.

I will miss seeing you dear Brother, it was a joy to know you.

Love,

Diana Dunckelmann

An Egyptian Nobel prize winner once said that “you can tell whether a man is clever by his answers, but you can tell whether a man is wise by his questions.”. By that measure George Ruby was one of the wisest and most profound people I know.

George was a man who questioned the world around him like a little boy seeking answers to the Big Riddles of life. Not just the dry ponderous stuff. George was always off in search of life’s daily adventures. What is the secret of the crystalline energy from Atlantis? Where is that treasure buried in the southwest? Is it possible to overcome inertia and create perpetual motion? This, and more, fascinated George, and his enthusiasm was infectious. More time than I can count he and we holed up together, him and I, discussing life’s many mysteries. And from this shared curiosity grew a bond between us, a bond that many of you have felt as well. A bond that grew from Spirit, but was cemented by connections in the heart.

As I sit here thinking of George, I can hear him saying to me “hellooooo there brother” and can see him hugging me tightly. I think of him pawing through boxes of sound equipment at the various Gatherings of Light, an unsung audio hero whose work allowed us to cherish Julian’s lectures far into the future. I think of doling out vitamins and herbs appropriate to what ailed us. But most of all, when I think of George Ruby, I think of his wonderful inappropriate sense of humor. Without a doubt, the three things that George valued most in this earth was Spirit, adventure and laughing. George thought it wonderful when Zsa Zsa Gabor announced to the world, “I never hated a man enough to give back his diamonds”. He was like a little boy giggling when he said “Five out of four blondes don’t understand fractions.” And of course there was the time when he announced to us all that a man needs a mistress just to break the monogamy. George, you were a real piece of work, unique in every way. I cherished my time with you and am glad we had the chance to share laughter and Spirit together. I loved you and will miss you.

Thanks for our time together George. Peace to you my brother. I look forward to when we come together once again.

Barry Burkan

The Angels are rejoicing to have George home again. We are left with the emptiness of missing his hugs and great sense of humor. We will see him again, and rejoice with him. When the joys are still remembered but the sorrow has quietly gone. There will always be a special place in the heart where love lives on.

Roberta Costisick

We would like for George’s family and friends to know that George had many friends here in California, Oregon and Washington and we will miss him. He was always kind and generous doing favors for anyone with a need and never expecting anything in return.

For me personally, George felt like a brother, probably because he treated Linda and I like family. I think George wanted to jump start the “Age of Brotherhood” by being “Every Body’s Brother!”

Although we didn’t get to see George all that often, we felt very close to him.

I heard stories over the years of George’s search for buried gold. I never heard if he found any treasure. I don’t know if George ever realized it but we found treasure in his heart of gold. I know he shared generously with many that he met. Our lives are richer for having known George.

Mercury in this sign places a focus on duty to one's family and partnerships.

August ends with a Lunar Eclipse August 28th at 4 degrees of Pisces. Solar and Lunar Eclipses throw a spotlight in the areas of our chart where they occur. It is important to note the sign of the Zodiac that they occupy and rule, as well. In Pisces, the Lunar Eclipse will emphasize emotions and feelings.

Watch your words the month of September as the Lunar Eclipse is followed by a Solar Eclipse September 11th at 18 degrees of Virgo.

September ushers in Saturn in the sign of Virgo for two and a half years. Saturn in this sign throws a spotlight on work, health, service to others, small animals and pets. There could be changes in services especially of a medical nature. Food may become a focus to bring about improvements. Use of preservatives in foods may be questioned.

The theme for this issue of the Ring of Light is "Tilling the soil or earth." Virgo is an earth sign, and Saturn always helps us to deal with the appropriate issues.

Mercury is the ruler of the sign of Virgo. Mercury will be in the reign of Saturn for two and a half years. The emphasis will be on duty to one's family and partnerships. Make sure your relationships are respectful and nurturing.

Since Virgo is very analytical and differentiates between what is important and what is not will be a valuable asset during this time. Mercury is the planet which rules humor. Be sure to cultivate your sense of humor. Laughter will be therapeutic, healing and uplifting.

JOY'S CORNER

CHANGES

by Joy Srour

Totowa, New Jersey

This information (from a reliable source) was given in love, to help us understand the energies that will be occurring. The first date is the June 21st Summer Solstice and will be the first wave of energy felt. The next date will be the Fall Equinox on Sept 21st.

The new energy coming in is massive. It is currently making the necessary adjustments so it can "be in the flow". Some may have felt a heaviness over the past few weeks as the energy was making adjustments.

The new energy is perfectly balanced with "Heavenly Father" and "Divine Mother" energies. Because of the massiveness of the energy it is being mistaken for the second coming. The balance of the energy will demand recognition of the "Divine Mother energy with all its motherly characteristics – more nurturing, more interested in the well being of the community, fairness etc.

The feeling we will have is a better sense of direction. This will occur around the Summer Solstice with more of a definite sense around the Fall Equinox. It should fall in line with Julian's earth predictions. This energy will affect each individual, according to their stage of development or unfolding.
